BURMA STORIES

BOOK LAUNCH & DISCUSSION

Join editor Zoë West and special guests for a reading from this new book of narratives from survivors of Burma's military regime. Followed by discussion with the participants and guests from the School for Shan State Nationalities Youth (SSSNY).

NOWHERE TO BE HOME is an eye-opening and groundbreaking collection of oral histories exposing the realities of life under Burmese military rule.

PLANTS THAT GREW IN THE FIRE is a powerful anthology by young activists from Shan State. In their own words, men and women from Burma describe their lives inside the country, as well as those they have fled to for refuge.

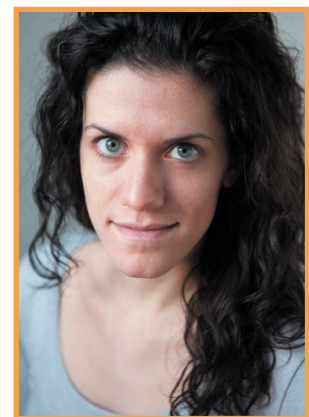

Meet the editors and authors of these two books, and help share their remarkable stories...
